

containing a material selected from a group consisting of rhodium, ruthenium, iridium, osmium and platinum as the primary constituent element, at least one of (a) the copper film and (b) the neighboring film being a film made by physical vapor deposition, and wherein the dielectric film is positioned such that the neighboring film is between the copper film and the dielectric film.

---